Sophomore English: The year is flying by, and the sophomores are keeping busy in their English class. They have spent their semester working on sentence corrections, honing their proofreading skills, putting together their childhood memories into an autobiography, and reading the classic novel To Kill a Mockingbird. Second semester will be just as busy as these students will work on poetry, short stories, research papers, and interpreting Shakespeare.

Senior English: The seniors in Composition I, which is dual credit through Colby Community College, have been busy practicing college-level writing. They have been diligently writing interview essays, comparisons, critiques, and also a literary analysis over a classic novel of their choosing. The seniors in English 4 have spent their time writing descriptions and narratives, working on proofreading, and reading the novels The Illustrated Man and Frankenstein.

During the spring semester, all of the senior classes will be working on a career unit. During this unit, the students will be reviewing technical writing used in the work place and using those skills to fill out application forms, write resumes, and compose different types of business letters. The unit will culminate in the students researching careers they might be interested in pursuing after high school or college. As part of this research, the students will be expected to complete a job shadow of one of the careers they find interesting. More information about the job shadow will be sent home with the seniors in February.

Teaching as a Career and Teaching Internship: This is the fifth year that Teaching as a Career and Teaching Internship are being offered as career pathway classes. These are for students who might be interested in pursuing a career in education. Teaching as a Career introduces the students to education by interviewing, observing, and shadowing teachers, administrators, and other school personnel and also tutoring younger children. The students in this class are learning about the different careers available in the education field. The second semester will involve more tutoring and helping in the classrooms. The students enrolled in Teaching Internship are taking the information they learned last year in the Teaching as a Career class and putting it into practice in the elementary, junior high, or high school classrooms. They have developed their own schedules for the year, which consist of assisting teachers and receiving more time in the classroom setting. Hopefully, all of these students are seeing what an important and rewarding field education truly is.

If you ever have any questions or concerns about what your student is doing in one of my classes, please don't hesitate to contact me at akrob@plainville270.net.
